Mending the Cracks: Unifying Internationalization Practices within 4EU+

Leading university:	Charles University, Faculty of Law
Project leader:	Pavel Linzer
Participating universities:	Charles University, Sorbonne University, University of Copenhagen

The initiative aims to harmonise internationalisation processes within the 4EU+ Alliance by bringing together student representatives from internal governing bodies. Through examining application procedures, credit and course recognition, and internal regulations affecting mobility, the project seeks to identify inconsistencies and propose unified practices. Its goal is to make international mobility more integrated, accessible, and convenient for 4EU+ students.

The project's core aim is to connect student representatives across member universities to address obstacles in mobility and collaboration from the student perspective. By aligning processes such as applications, support systems, and academic recognition, the project aims to create a more coherent and easily navigable international experience across the Alliance.

Expected outputs include a comprehensive report, recommendations for university leadership, dissemination to governing bodies, and long-term improvements to the student mobility experience.
