News for Applicants

The Czech Republic is currently under a state of emergency, which will last until May 17 and which entails a number of restrictions to normal life. Higher education institutions have switched to an online form of teaching (including Charles University). There have been new measures which came into effect on April 20 and April 24, 2020. These measures ease some restrictions with regards to many institutions (including schools and school facilities), freedom of movement, and travelling.

However, the situation with regard to the spread of the Covid-19 in the Czech Republic is relatively stable and we will update you regularly about the admission process. More information about the Covid-19 pandemic in the Czech Republic is also available here.

A couple of good reasons why to study at Charles University (especially now)

Covid-19 pandemic - information for applicants
The faculties will now have the opportunity to modify requirements for admission to study. Application dates as well as the form of the entrance exams might change. Please note, further changes may occur depending on the development of the situation. For questions contact the respective faculty’s admission office. If you have already submitted the application, please follow the news on the university or faculty website and stay in touch with the admission office. Also, interested applicants can learn about the changes in the same information system where applications are put forward.

For more information about the possible changes see here (as of April 16, 2020; section Information for those applying to study at Charles University) or here (as of March 20, 2020).

Extension of application deadlines
Some of our faculties have already decided to change or extend the application deadlines. Please, check the database or see the list here.

DATABASE - STUDY PROGRAMMES

List of all study programmes in foreign languages for the academic year 2020/2021 is available here.

The application deadline for many of the study programmes is April 30, 2020.

Travelling to the Czech Republic
At this moment, travelling to and from the Czech Republic is restricted. However, exceptions may apply and the situation with regard to travelling evolves every day.

From April 27, 2020 the possibilities for entry of the EU citizens to the Czech Republic have been extended. It is now possible to arrive to the Czech Republic for the purpose of educational activities (strict conditions apply). Please, follow the website of the Ministry of the Interior of the Czech Republic for conditions and updates. You might be specifically interested in information for students entering the territory of the Czech Republic. Also, stay in touch with the Czech embassies abroad. Please note, until further notice all requests and proceedings for short-term visa applications, temporary and permanent residence applications have been suspended (as of April 22, 2020).
