
Share your knowledge and experience with PhD students

Join the debate as a speaker and share your results and experiences from the world of science and research. Are you interested in a specific scientific topic, have you completed your doctoral study, and are you currently a postdoctoral fellow?

If you answered yes to all questions, we have an interesting offer for you to participate in learning and sharing your achievements with your fellow doctoral students.

Dear Postdoctoral Fellow,

let us inform you here with an offer of collaboration and the opportunity to participate in sharing your know-how with other students of Charles University. We have here a unique opportunity for you to meet, share and discuss your experience from the research you have already done.

As part of the cooperation between Charles University and the Campus Hybernská - the Hybernská Campus building 2D, are offered just for science and research, information sharing, and mutual motivation to study. Here is possible to organize lectures, meetings, and workshops on a variety of topics in the fields of science, research, funding, mobility, and grants.

Sharing experiences is seen as important, especially in the education sector, so if you would like to get involved and share a particular topic with other colleagues, please do not hesitate to contact us at this website .

Suggestions for topics we would like to develop for doctoral students in the future:

- Who is a postdoc?

- o What are the responsibilities and activities associated with this role?

- o The role of a postdoctoral fellow at a foreign university, the length of time, and the opportunities offered.

- Popularisation of science and scientific research

- Presentation of scientific results at a foreign university x Charles University

- Presentation of scientific results to attract new members to the research team
