About the programme
Active since 2018, the student ambassador’s programme at Charles University brings together enthusiastic international students who seek further opportunities to represent their alma mater and to bring the international student community closer together. The project’s core idea is collaboration, aiming to tighten the relationship between students, their university, and the city, hence improving the overall integration into the social and academic fabric.

Our ambassadors participate on future heading of the university or discuss and organise events for the students. They often represent Charles University during various events, from applicants to alumni, and collaborate with our social media team as content creators or bloggers. Some are more active as community leaders and work with local and international students to create more inclusive and interconnected environment. Therefore, the programme has two main axes: PR (representation and communication outside) and community building (inside).

You can contact our ambassadors if you would like to learn more about the student life, their reasons for choosing Charles University, the admission experience, or any other topic you have questions or doubts about.

I have a master’s degree in animal genetics and breeding at the Faculty of Agriculture in Zagreb. I had three Erasmus experiences during my studies; one was in Prague (CULS), one in Vienna (BOKU), and the third one in Jaén, Spain (UJA). Now, I am a PhD student working on evolutionary biology at the Faculty of Science and, for three years, a student ambassador of CU. I love spending time in the countryside to recharge my working batteries. My hobbies include yoga, astronomy, and Netflix. My irrational dream is to rescue all the dogs in the world and give them a safe home (with me). I am always happy to talk about animals (especially dogs), nature, science, fun facts, space, cartoons, and food.

I previously received my bachelor’s in law at the Autonomous University of the State of Hidalgo (UAEH) in Mexico. During my studies, I participated in an international academic exchange program, studying for one semester at the Faculty of...
Law at Masaryk University in Brno, Czech Republic. That's how I first came to Czechia. Now that I am a full-time student at CU, I decided to take the concept of being an "international student" more seriously. I participated in the Erasmus+ programme and visited the Faculty of Political Sciences at the University of Bologna, Italy. Besides my studies, I really enjoy hiking so I can admire landscapes from the top of mountains (I consider myself more of a forest person than a beach person). In my free time, outside of studying and working, I enjoy listening to music, and if I really like a song, I often end up singing it. In the city, swimming and going to the cinema are two of my favourite activities. Beyond that, I enjoy traveling and learning about the different cultures of the world.

Why did I choose Charles University?
Since the beginning of my law studies, I have had an interest in human rights, international law, and international organizations. What I then learned during my semester abroad allowed me to begin with my professional career in international relations. I started working for higher education institutions in the area of academic cooperation and as a liaison with embassies. All of this led me to pursue my graduate studies abroad as well. My first contact with Czech culture and my professional goal of working in international cooperation made me choose Charles University, specifically the Master's in Geopolitical Studies. Not all universities offer this programme and, being immersed in the field of international higher education for some time, I knew that CU is considered one of the top universities in Europe. Additionally, the beauty of Prague, which I was already familiar with, made me imagine what my experience living here would be like even before submitting my application.

What do I like about my studies in Czechia?
There are many aspects to consider. First, the Czech Republic is a safe country; I feel secure here. Second, living in Prague is totally a positive experience that allows me to connect not only with the local culture but also with people from all around the world. Just with my classmates, we form a small international community which allows us to see the concept from different perspectives. My classmates come from Germany, Norway, Spain, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Hungary, Colombia, US, or UK and getting to know them all has been a great experience. This, coupled with the opportunities I have had as a student at CU, make my studies here really worth it. For example, one of my professors is the Ambassador of the Czech Republic to NATO, and so to complement the topics covered in class, we were able to visit the headquarters in Brussels. Last but not least, the geographical location of country right in the centre of Europe allows me to travel and explore the continent easily. In conclusion, living in a country with so much history, culture, and wonderful nature makes everything more special to me.
