
Research

Charles University is an internationally acknowledged research university and one of the most efficient scientific institutes in the Czech Republic. It aims to engage in diverse scientific, research, development and innovation activities and to contribute to discovery and deeper understanding through its results.

It enhances its international prestige by extending cooperation in science and research. To do this, it uses the CU International Advisory Board to direct its scientific work, the European Centre for engagement in international scientific networks and funding, and actively participates in international research infrastructures through various educational and scientific programmes.
